More for You – Out of Passion for Electronics

BMK at electronica 2024

Augsburg, October 1st – “Passion for Electronics” is the focus and theme of this year’s trade fair appearance by Augsburg-based EMS provider BMK at electronica 2024, scheduled to take place from November 12th to 15th, 2024, at Messe München.

In 2024, BMK not only celebrated its 30th anniversary, but will also participate as an exhibitor at the world’s leading trade fair and conference for electronics this November.

“The cross-sectoral decline in demand across the European economy, coupled with persistently high inventory levels and shifts in the supply chain, is currently challenging both EMS companies and their customers,” explains Florian Weiß, Management Board Member at BMK. “Despite these challenges, BMK continues to invest in expanding its production capabilities, as well as in advanced software tools, and automation solutions. Our ongoing commitment to enhancing our services based on client needs makes us a reliable partner for our customers. Our greatest motivator is our passion for electronics, and we aim to bring that passion to life for all visitors at Electronica 2024,” states Weiß.

At the trade fair, BMK will showcase its extensive range of services, including development, a wide variety of manufacturing technologies in the PCBA field, system assembly, and after-sales services. With this full-service portfolio, BMK ensures the success of electronics projects, regardless of their complexity, product diversity or volume. Interested visitors can also experience the digital collaboration portal live from BMKyourproto, the rapid prototyping service for challenging products.
